AGRICULTURAL.

Straight Ahead.

From the New York Evening Post.

This should be the motto of every farmer. He should be careful in forming his plans, whether for the year or the cultivation of his farm during years of years. Every consideration of market, capacity of his land, conveniences for doing work and every item that may affect the selection of his course of cropping, feeding, &c., should be thoroughly well considered before he adopts any definite plan. But once having done this, it would be well for him to write on his barn door, "Straight ahead" and bear the motto always in mind. There is hardly a recognized branch of agricultural industry which if persistently pursued with judgment during a series of years, can fail to result in ample profit to the agriculturist, but if once discouraged by one, two or three years of bad crops, or bad weather, or bad luck, and tempted by the success of his neighbors in other directions, or by reports of the success of other methods of cultivation in other parts of the country, he will be quite sure to end his life not very much richer than he commenced it.

Every kind of farming requires for its successful prosecution certain expensive preparations and accompaniments, which are not so well adapted to any other. If it be decided to devote the farm exclusively to the manufacture of butter, good barns—or, better, a good large barn—sufficient for the careful preservation of everything that is raised, convenient stalls for the cattle, and pleasant yards in which they may exercise, good facilities for watering, and for perfect cleanliness throughout, a well arranged and well constructed milk room or spring house, good churns, and good everything that successful butter making requires, should be attended at the earliest possible moment that the farmer's means will compass. If sheep be the object, the barns may be—should be—very differently constructed, conveniences for feeding should be of an entirely different sort, and the exercising yards etc to do so should be quite different from those required for cattle, while none of the systematic dairy arrangements suggested will be necessary. If it be intended to raise horses, the arrangement of pastures, which in their case are more necessary, as affording means of exercise, than in the case of horned cattle, the arrangement of loose boxes for mares, and the whole apparatus for the comfort, easy feeding and care of the horses, should likewise be different. Any one of these branches of industry, or any one of a dozen other branches may, as we say, be come very profitable. Any one of them may, during a series of years, be so unprofitable as to well nigh discourage the stoutest heart.

But the moment that the discouragement reaches the point of inducing the farmer to change his system, to raise horses rather than to make butter or wool, his special arrangements for the branch that he abandons become only incomprehensible to the carrying on of the newly adopted branch; the experience which he has gained (and the experience that we gain through misfortune is the most valuable that we can get), becomes of almost no value, and he must go again to the expensive school of experiment, probably to achieve no better results in the end, and, becoming again dissatisfied, to try still a third system. This infatuation of farmers is a very prevalent one. In every part of the country they rush like a flock of sheep, after every system which has happened for one or two years to yield large profit to those who may have devoted their lives to it. Witness the recent "hop excitement" in Wisconsin, where men, whose business was amply successful, whose profits ought to have been enough to satisfy any farmer, and who were embarked in a course of cultivation which could not fail to have yielded a competence within a few years, were so enticed by one or two years of brilliant success on the part of hop growers who, with special knowledge of the business, or with special good fortune in their early attempts, succeeded in making from a very few acres large sums of money, that hundreds of farmers abandoned all that they had gained by their experience, in many instances mortgaged their farms up to their eyes for the means with which to start hop yards, and, tickled by their early success and going deeper into debt for the means of their extension, have this last year been brought to sudden and great grief. Men who, before the excitement, were rich, are now almost hopelessly poor; and in middle life with their own habits and those of their families gauged according to the scale of competence, find themselves now obliged to abandon everything that they have gained, and to make a fresh start, with scarcely any advantage over the poor emigrant who first sets his foot on their fertile land.

For a year or two past there seems to have been a general mania among the farmers of certain districts to slaughter their Merino sheep, and to adopt the mutton producing breeds or even to go into some other and entirely different branch of agriculture. At first sheep were profitable with them, and they all went into it. Then for a year or two, owing to temporary causes, the fine wool sheep became unprofitable, and they all got frightened and ran from their flocks like rats from a sinking ship. It is too early to predict with certainty what will be the result, but we do not hazard much in expressing the opinion that within ten years' time, these men will all wish they had stuck to their original intentions.

Sometimes a man, having special knowledge in a certain branch of agricultural industry, will come into a neighborhood where a certain other branch has been successfully prosecuted for years, and by reason of a good market for the limited quantity that he is able to produce, or of his great skill, or from some other cause, will make a brilliant success. Immediately his steady-going neighbors catch the infection, and, thinking that what one has done all may do, they straightway adopt the new business, whatever it may be, spend one or two years in finding out that they have made a mistake, and during that time lose the thread of their original discourse, and find it the difficult work of years to get back to the position they so hastily and injudiciously abandoned.

The maxim that a rolling stone gathers no moss is nowhere else so applicable as in agriculture. The farmer's capital is invested in his farm and in his improvements; and the accumulated capital not represented by money, "that in his head," is invested in a slowly acquired knowledge which is of great value to him. If he is tempted to abandon his present course and to adopt a new one, not only must his actual money capital in farm and buildings lie idle during the year or two that are required for him to get fairly launched on the new stream, but that which his experience has allowed him to gather together is, much of it, sent to the four winds of heaven.

Therefore, we feel that we cannot too earnestly urge every young farmer, before he finally settles upon the system that he is to follow, to carefully weigh all of the arguments for and against every branch of his business which promises more or less remuneration, and not to settle upon any one until he has fully determined, all things considered, that it is one which, in the long run, will pay the best. In forming this decision he should be guided, not only by his own observation, but by the opinion of his more experienced neighbors, and by all that books and agricultural papers are able to teach him of the result of each department of agriculture, under different circumstances and in different localities. According to the wisdom with which he makes this decision will be his chances for success in life, and he had better almost waste his first two or three years than to make a serious mistake in starting.

Having decided what he will do, he should nail his flag to the mast, and allow no winds or waves, no success and no adversity to sway him from his course. He may find out, after five or ten years, that he has made a mistake; that he might, at the outset, have adopted some other course with a better prospect of success. No matter! never mind what was lost five years ago by taking a wrong step, more will be lost in attempting to regain it than in adhering closely to any well considered and deliberately adopted plan of five years' standing.

It is very well to say "never too late to mend." This rule, like many others, has its exceptions, and the most important exception of all is surely to be found in the case of a man who, having turned his farming life into a certain channel, tries, after getting under full headway, to dam the stream and divert it into a new course, and then perhaps the mend wouldn't be a mend after all. It is by no means certain that the facts which present themselves to the farmer's judgment at one period have any more real weight and value than those which, with equal care and deliberation, and probably with equal facilities for forming a correct judgment, influenced him at the outset of his operations.

No matter what happens, stick to the wreck and go "straight ahead!"

Snake-Poison and Its Antidote

E. C. Lewis writes from Kingston, Jamaica, to the London Public Opinion

"An officer of the Royal Artillery, on returning here from Honduras, brought a variety of the worst species of snakes; and, handling them with impunity, a brother officer (who I hope is still living in Scotland) observed to him, "These must be innocuous." "Oh, no," observed his friend, on taking up one in his hand, "if this little fellow was to bite you, you would be a dead man in a few hours!" "Then, how do you provide against it?" was the reply. My friends, when the root of the Guaco was produced, and a piece a piece transferred by him to me as the preventative I have also used the Guaco successfully in cholera; and the juice is used in South America, as also the Cedron, an other valuable antidote for the bites of venomous reptiles, and an excellent substitute for quinine; and it may be remembered by many, that at a period when one of the keepers of a menagerie was bitten by a rattlesnake, it was observed that the Cedron was not at hand (as it should have been, to administer in such cases), or his life might have been spared. I have carried the Cedron about with me, and found it useful, and wish to get more, or the plant itself to introduce into this island, as, in common with our late Island botanist, I consider it might be very advantageously established here; although fortunately, like Ireland, we have no venomous snakes in our 'Isle of Springs' to our knowledge, though plenty of others—scorpions, centipedes, &c.

"While on the subject, I trust I may be permitted to add that we have other valuable medicinal plants not sufficiently appreciated. Another 'Eupatorium' abounds here, which the late Sir W. J. Hooker did me the honor to report on botanically, but referred me elsewhere for its properties, which have proved to be excellent in cholera, intermittent fevers, &c., and might be far superior in the preparation of ale for hot climates, to the quassia, bitter wood, or drugs which are generally used."

An Honorable Act

The following story is told by a paper in St. Paul, Minnesota:

"Many years ago a lady in Massachusetts contracted a small debt for certain articles of merchandise to the payment of which she pledged her word. Circumstances over which she had no control prevented its payment for some years. At last she, with her family, came West, and before leaving the old homestead in Massachusetts she arranged for the settlement of the claim against her. Ten years after, she returned to Massachusetts and to her great regret ascertained that the debt had not been paid through neglect of those whom she entrusted with that duty.

"Her creditor, she learned, had also gone to the great West and was supposed to be a resident of Chicago. A few weeks ago she wrote a letter in regard to the debt which she so much desired to pay, and addressed it to Chicago, Ill. In due time an answer was received from the creditor, who has become an active business man of that bustling city. He acknowledged the receipt of the letter, and, in reference to the claim, said: 'You must be aware that I have no legal claim upon you, as the debt was outlawed years ago. Do not distress yourself to pay that old claim.'

"A post office order was at once purchased at the St. Paul office, and remitted to Chicago as a settlement of the debt."

Temperance and Paupers.

About thirty years ago a few citizens of New Braintree, in Massachusetts, met together and resolved that the best interests of the town required a tavern in which spirituous liquors should not be sold, as the fact was patent to all that too many of the young men in the place would congregate at the "village inn," and were forming habits of social drinking. After talking over the importance of the matter, and satisfying themselves that the enterprise they proposed would not prove a paying one, they subscribed from $7,000, built a hotel, furnished it, and engaged a landlord to run it free of rent. Soon after this reform, the people of the town came to the conclusion that it was an unprofitable business to farm out the poor of the town, as had long been the practice, to the lowest bidder; and at a town meeting they voted to buy a poorhouse farm, and put the poor at work. This was also carried into effect. Twenty five years have passed away, and going to that quiet, thrifty town not long ago, the stage driver said to us, on passing the "poorhouse farm," "There is a funny place." "Why so?" we asked. "Because it is a poor house farm, and not a pauper in it. And I suppose the reason is, some thirty years ago a temperance tavern was started here—no liquors have been sold, and there is no drinking, nor drunkenness, and not a pauper in the town."

FOR THE LADIES.—An exchange says: "It is not you neat dress, your expensive shawl, or your pretty fingers, that attract the attention of men of sense. They look beyond these. It is the true loveliness of your nature that wins and continues to retain the affections of the heart. Young ladies sadly miss it who labor to improve their outward looks while they bestow not a thought upon their minds. Fools may be won by gewgaws and fashionable showy dresses, but the wise and substantial are never caught by such traps. Let modesty be your dress. Use pleasant and agreeable language, and though you may not be courted by fop or sot, the good and truly great will love to linger in your steps."

MIDNIGHT DISPATCHES.

BY THE WESTERN UNION LINE.

VERY LATEST NEWS.

General News.

NEW YORK, August 9.

Private cable telegrams from England to-day report bad weather and injury to growing crops in Great Britain and France, and higher quotations in the English grain markets than reported by the Press telegrams. This caused great animation on produce exchange, and stimulated a sharp upward movement in prices. Exporters came in force, and took 250,000 bushels of wheat and 26,000 barrels of flour at an advance of 8 to 10 cents per bushel on former, and 25 cents per bbl. on the latter. The markets were swept of all the stuff offering with shipper limits. The large movement in breadstuffs for export was felt in the different departments of speculation in Wall street, and in the gold room, premium fell to 35¾ in the theory that produce shipments would make a large exchange and stop the specie shipments.

The joint committee of Atlantic and Anglo American Companies and directors of the N. Y. and Newfoundland & London Telegraph Company have made a further reduction of tariff between part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and New York, commencing Tuesday, August 10, 1869. Thirty shillings sterling, or 7 dollars and a half in gold, for ten words, and three shillings sterling, or 75 cents in gold, for each extra word. Press messages one half the above rates.

Application was made to Judge McCann this afternoon, for an injunction against the Highland Suspension Bridge and New England & Erie R. R., and the appointment of a Receiver. After some discussion, the matter was adjourned until to-morrow.

Joseph G. Hanley, a well known actor, died to-day.

The first bale of new cotton has arrived from Texas, en route for Liverpool.

The case of J. H. Pratt, the Texas rioter, was before both Federal and State Courts to-day. Commissioner Osborne at first refused to give him up to the State Court in answer to an habeas corpus issued by Judge McCann, whereupon the latter said he should direct the sheriff to enforce the writ and call upon the State military for aid. Finally after an interview with District Attorney Pierrepont and the Judge, Pratt was produced in the State Court, whereupon Pierrepont stated the circumstances of the case, and asked that the prisoner be remanded to the custody of the United States Marshal. This was objected to by his counsel, on the ground that the Federal authorities had no jurisdiction. The Judge granted the request of the District Attorney, and the case comes up before Judge Osborne on Monday.

A writ of habeas corpus was issued by Judge McCann directing Superintendent Kennedy to produce the bodies of Harwood and Hatcher, the English forgers, and show cause for their detention. As the forgers sailed Saturday they cannot be produced in Court.

The Herald's special Madrid dispatch of the 8th says: Mr Forbes, of Boston, had an interview with General Prime and Marshal Serrano, during which the proposed purchase of Cuba by the United States was brought up. Mr. Forbes was presented to the Regent and Secretary of War by the American Minister. The proposal was not accepted at present. Forbes, however, continues his negotiations. Several priests have joined the Carlist bands, and three priests were arrested yesterday in Madrid.

The Herald says Secretary Fish gives as his reason for the seizure of the Spanish gunboats which are being built in this city, that they were intended to relieve the Spanish vessels now doing coast duty around the coast of Cuba, and permit the fleet being used to reinaugurate the Peruvian war. He says he does not intend to permit the gunboats to leave our waters, but if they do leave without his permission, he will send after them a force which will astonish the Dons, and compel the authority to be respected.

A story is current in Washington that at the time Gen. Sickles was being discussed in the Cabinet previous to his appointment, Attorney General Hoar and Secretary Fish suggested that the general peculiarity with the Ostend manifesto might be used to interfere with his usefulness at the Spanish Court. Secretary Rawlins and Postmaster General Cresswell, in reply to the objection, remarked that at the time they were in favor of the manifesto. After a brief silence, the President solved the question of appointment by saying, he too was in favor of the manifesto at the time it was issued.

Thos Canda, living in Jackson alley, Brooklyn, was arrested yesterday on a charge of causing the death of his wife by neglecting to provide the necessaries of life. The wretched woman died from destitution and want.

Walter Brown, champion oarsman of America, left Boston Saturday by steamer for Liverpool to row a match for the championship of England.

The striking tailors had a grand parade to-day, during which a well ordered meeting was held in City Hall Park. The procession subsequently marched through the streets in which are located establishments which have been placed on strike. The procession was quite large and indicative of a determination to compel employers to accede to their demand for increased wages.

A block of buildings in Yonkers, bounded by Atherton, Dock and Ann streets and Wells avenue, burned last night, involving a loss of $200,000, on which there is but small insurance. The fire is supposed to be incendiary. Among the buildings consumed were Ockert & Quick's steam saw mill, J. F. Parson's lumber yard, H. Brewster's lumber yard, Stewart's stables, German's real estate office, and a large number of dwellings.

Ground will be broken to-day for the new post office. It is reported arrangements have been consummated by which the building will be located fifty feet nearer City Hall than was at first decided upon, leaving that amount of additional space for the rapidly increasing business, at the lower end of the park.

Last evening the steamer Rip Van Winkle, on her return from the fishing banks, when opposite Jones's Beach, ran over a sail boat with six persons. The steamers course was stopped and the boat's crew rescued.

A child of Mrs Jane Collier fell over the cliffs near Palisade last evening while walking with its mother, a distance of 50 feet, and was fatally injured.

Mexican advices say the Indians of the State of Chiapas, on the frontier of Guatemala, have revolted, and are committing serious depredations. At Chamula and several other large towns they raised the standard of insurrection.

The Express announces the suspension of an eminent dry goods commission house (Bowers, Beekman & Co.), in consequence of the steady decline in woolens. Liabilities estimated at three millions. Assets large. A Boston capitalist is said to have offered to advance all the money necessary to carry the house through for a year, but it was decided to suspend and ask an extension.

A Traitor Horsewhipped.

CLIFTON HOUSE, NIAGARA FALLS, Aug. 9

James H. Day, formerly private secretary to Gen Ryan, arrived here last Friday with letters purporting to come from the Cuban Junta, in New York, asking the General to return to New York immediately with Day. Ryan, suspecting the letter was a forgery, accused Day of treachery, which the latter was finally compelled to admit, whereupon Ryan gave him a severe and unmerciful horsewhipping. Day, on his knees, begged for mercy, but none was shown him until the guests rushed in and took the whip from Ryan. The affair created great excitement.

Instantly Killed.

CLEVELAND, August 9.

This morning at half past two o'clock Philip Gilmartin, proprietor of the Lake View House, corner of Seneca and Summit streets, supposing him to be a burglar, shot and instantly killed his son, Thomas Gilmartin, while the latter was attempting to enter the house.

Dead Body Found.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., August 9.

The dead body of Mowery Irels, who murdered his wife in June last, at Burrittville, was found Saturday, in a swamp near the scene of the murder. He had evidently killed himself soon after killing his wife.

The Eclipse.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.

Commodore Sands, who has charge of the Naval Observatory, has submitted the following to the Secretary of the Navy:

U. S. NAVAL OBSERVATORY,
WASHINGTON, D. C., August 9, 1869.

SIR: I have the honor to report that I have received a telegraphic dispatch from our observatory of the eclipse at Des Moines, Iowa. Prof. Harkness reports as follows: We have succeeded beyond our most sanguine expectations. We have 123 photographs of the eclipse, two being of totality; also a spectro, five prominences, no two of them giving the same lines. Could see no absorption of lines in the spectrum of the corona; it gave a continuous spectrum, with one bright line on it. Prof. Eastman's observations were also successful. Prof. Newcomb reports no ultra mercurial planets were visible. Mr. F. W. Hayward left here on Friday morning and arrived at Bristol, Tenn., in ample time for the eclipse. His special object of attention were duration of totality and ultra mercurial planets, and circumstances attending his observations were extremely favorable. Mercury, Venus and Regulus were visible to the naked eye, but no ultra mercurial planet was seen. He has numerous notes of the eclipse, from which a full report will be made. At this Observatory the sun was partially obscured by clouds, and owing to the use of a higher power than the observer was accustomed to, he failed to get a first and last contact. His other observations were entirely successful. I will have the honor to submit a more detailed report on the return of the officers sent out from here.

Very respectfully, your obd't servant,
B. F. SANDS

Personal.

Senor Marcal, the new Mexican Minister, arrived to day. He visited the State Department and left his credentials. It is probable he will be received by the President to morrow.

Dr. Palaicco, Commissioner under the Claims Convention, also arrived this morning. Arrangements have been made for an early meeting of the Board.

Counterfeit Coupons.

Three dollar coupons of 1881, paid by the Assistant Treasurer at New York and received by Gen. Spinner, are pronounced counterfeits. They are lithographed and badly executed.

The Susquehanna Railroad Case.

ALBANY, N. Y., August 9.

Testimony was taken and arguments heard before Judge Peckham, this morning, in the matter of contesting Receivers for the Susquehanna R. R., and the Judge has decided that Hon. R. H. Pruyne is the legally appointed Receiver, and that James Fisk, Jr. is not. This gives the Ramsey interest full possession of the road, and they are in charge.

Spain.

MADRID, August 9.

The Impartial Newspaper in its issue of to-day says: Reinforcements of 20,000 men will be sent to Cuba in September. The Cortes will assemble in October, and the first business will be the election of a King. Several Carlist agents were arrested in this city last night.

Twenty Insurgents Killed.

HAVANA, Aug. 9.

Three skirmishes have recently taken place near Cienfuegas Villas, in which 20 insurgents were killed.

PETROLEUM MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE MORNING HERALD, TITUSVILLE, Aug 9, 1869—5 P. M.

The market opened weak this morning and sales of small lots were made as low as $5.55 on the Lower creek and one round lot changed hands at Miller at $5.55. Although, as previously stated, the market was weak, yet, generally speaking, sellers did not submit to the decline as there were no round lots offered on the Lower creek under $5 60 or under $5.40 at Miller and Titusville. At these figures, however, the offerings were considerable not only for regular delivery but also for seller's option thirty or sixty days. At Oil City the feeling was a shade weaker than on the creek, and a settlement of a contract for delivery on B. G. cars, was made at $5 85. The state of affairs continued unaltered until about the middle of the afternoon when a slight improvement was noticeable. A little later the demand increased, and before five o'clock there were free bids on the Lower creek at $5 60. At this price, however but few lots were obtaining, as sellers had raised the asking prices to $5 65 and $5 70. At the close there was a slight upward tendency. On the Upper creek the market closed firm with more buyers than sellers, at $5 40. The demand was principally for Cleveland. The Sales and re sales aggregated 6,350 barrels.

PITTSBURGH OIL MARKET.

PITTSBURGH, Aug 9

Crude—There was a perfect stagnation in the crude oil market with a prospect of continuation till either refined oil advances or crude oil declines.

Holders are still very firm in their views.

We note sales of 500 bbls. on spot at 16c. We quote sellers all year at 15½ and buyers all year at 16 and 15½.

Refined—The business doing in the refined oil market is little more than that of crude. Prices have declined and the market is weak. We are advised of the following transactions: 1,000 barrels each August and September, at 32½c. We quote various deliveries as follows: Sept 31½c. August 31½c, bid 32 asked. September 32½c and 32½c, last three months 32½c.

The shipments eastward Saturday amounted to 3,327 barrels and 100 cases refined.

Petroleum Items.

Yesterday, not a little stir was created among operators on the creek and elsewhere, as well among the citizens of Tionesta, by the circulation of reports to the effect that a new one hundred barrel well had been struck on the Jamison farm, Allegheny river, about two miles above that place These reports were, in a measure, correct A well was struck on the farm named, at the depth of 150 feet, and produced about one hundred barrels during the first twenty four hours it was pumped Yesterday the product fell off materially, and in the afternoon it was, by actual measurement, at the rate of but sixty barrels a day The well is owned by railroad men employed on the River branch of the O C & A R R'y. The oil is obtained from the same sand rock that the Knapp well, on the same farm, was sunk into It will be remembered that the latter well ceased to produce in about thirty days after it was struck

A new well was struck on the Shaw farm, Lower Cherry run, last week It is yielding ten barrels a day This is the first well that has been sunk on this farm

ACROSS THE NIAGARA RIVER ON A VELOCIPEDE —Prof. Andrew Jenkens, sometimes called the Canadian Blondin, a tight rope performer of celebrity in the Dominion, announces that about the 20th inst. he intends to essay a most perilous feat, nothing less than crossing the fearful chasm of Niagara river, below the Falls, by means of a velocipede ridden over a tight rope The place of crossing will be a short distance below the old Suspension Bridge, where the length of the spanning cable will be about one thousand feet. The vehicle used by the daring velocipedian ambulist is of peculiar construction. The wheels are grooved and it is propelled by the hands, a pole being carried on the feet By this means Prof. Jenkins says he can surmount a considerable grade Nothing of the sort has ever been attempted in public, and the novelty and dadger of the feat will doubtless attract a great crowd to witness the trial

NEW YORK MARKET —Messrs Webb & Hoffer have succeeded to the proprietorship of the New York Market, corner of Main and Franklin streets and will hereafter continue the business on their own account Everybody knows "Fred," who has been salesman in the establishment ever since it started, and has acquired a wide popularity by his promptitude and urbanity He will remain at the same post, and will no doubt largely increase the list of his patrons The location is central and convenient, and the reputation it has already acquired as a first class market will be fully sustained under the new arrangement.

TO NIGHT the Wheeler Family appear at Corinthian Hall for a short season of three nights only. The principle performers are Master Bennie, the Boy Wonder of the Age; Mrs. J. Their entertainments are highly complimented by the press wherever they have performed.

A Step to the Pacific.

The agents of the Kansas Pacific Railway, present, in another column, an enterprise possessing features which seem to merit special comment. Having built their road from Kansas City the Sheridan, and found it a profitable and promising investment, the managers now propose to continue it to Denver, and thus open up the trade of the Rocky Mountains. That much, it is hoped, will be completed by June next; and its agents, Messrs. Dabney, Morgan & Co., and M K. Jesup & Co., Bankers and Merchants of high reputation, now tender through our columns, a loan of $6,500,000 for this purpose.

These gentlemen state with clearness the reasons which have induced them to give this loan their endorsement. The Kansas Pacific Railway now runs through the centre of Kansas, and is in successful and profitable operation for over four hundred miles. We remember the country through which it passes as a wide, open plain, apparently as boundless and rolling as the sea, known only to a few tribes of wild, roving Indians, and occasionally to a venturesome squad of state-guards and herdsmen, who ministered a primitive hospitality every fifteen or twenty miles. Topeka, Salina and Manhattan were little more than the geographical designations of towns that hoped to be. Hays, Ellsworth, Sheridan and the twenty stopping places now up on its time table, did not exist, even in the imagination of the pioneers Denver was a mere cluster of mining cabins and Indian huts. The Cheyennes and Arrapahoes held solemn council or high revelry in its way. There was no law but a great deal of rude, summary justice, which grieved sober believers in habeas corpus, and trial by jury Now, Denver is as neat, well built and comfortable as Hartford, with schools and churches, rows of brick stores, hotels and tasteful dwellings, which recall the luxury and comfort of the East Nature has rimmed and fringed it with the noble Rocky Mountains, whose hills glisten in snow, while their sides are clothed with deep and rich mid-summer greenery. The New York Tribune says

It is now proposed to unite this city with the East by an extension of the Kansas Pacific Railway. To do this it will be necessary to build 220 miles of road The Managers are wise not to defer it, in the vain hope of being able to induce Congress to vote them large subsidies The Government has built one road to the Pacific at great expense. Private citizens are quite ready and willing to build another, especially when those who ask their aid can show as good a balance sheet as the Kansas Managers. St. Louis is on the natural route from New York to the Rocky Mountains and San Francisco It is the metropolis of the mighty Valley of the Mississippi, and the extension of this road is a new and important step in the great highway between St Louis and San Francisco The Union Pacific (Omaha) Road has as much business as it can manage, and we have grave doubts whether it will be able to keep open a through route amid the mid-winter snow and ice of the Sierra Nevadas A through road must finally traverse the warm countries of New Mexico and Arizona, along the thirty fifth parallel or below it General Palmer has surveyed a route where snow rarely falls—every mile of which opens rich mining deposits. It embraces the oldest towns on the continent The country demands such a road, and this extension is a step towards completing it

It is interesting to note the progress of a railway which cleaves its business from a country ten years ago conceded to the buffalo and Indians In April 1869 Kansas Road earned in gross income, $217 914 49, of which $9, 291 60 were balances Day expenses leaving a net result of $124 653 88 In May, the earnings were $222-164 46, the expenses $107 987 77 leaving a net of $114 175 69 Two months' aggregate $338-798 57 The cars few roads in our older and riper States that would not be content with such a result But the truth is, these new countries have much growth in them We have but to touch our Western prairies and hills with the iron wand, and cities spring up, towns cluster along the streams and highways, and broad plains blossom with wheat, corn and barley, schoolhouses and churches take the place of the block house and the fort, and the great rivers are disturbed by steam and water wheel So our civilization has marched over the prairies, is advancing over the plains, and in a few months we shall have the vast treasures of Colorado and the gold coun ries under contribution The President, in his 1st Inaugural, pointed to these hills as the "strong box," whose treasures would pay the National debt This railroad is the key to open it We therefore look with pleasure upon this effort of private citizens to carry mother road to the Pacific We must have at least three railways across the continent We must enable the Northern and Southern and Middle States respectively to reach farthest West by the most convenient way. We look upon the State of Kansas with an interest not far removed from affection This child of tears, and blood and agony, now marches to the dignity and grandeur of an empire, and well deserves the proud tond name of "the Massachusetts of the West" To this road she owes much of her prosperity, and now, that its owners propose to carry it to Denver, and wed the Rocky Mountains to the Mississippi Valley, we hail them as men doing great National service, and earnestly hope they will receive from our people prompt and earnest support The loan they offer is certainly a good one It yields high interest in gold, has many years to run, is secured by large grants of land and profitable railway, and is endorsed by men whose word gives it the force of an irrefragable guarantee.

The Crops.

A careful sifting by the commercial press of a vast amount of information from various parts of the country, private and public, leads to the conclusion that the fears entertained about wet weather drawbacks to the cereal crops have been much exaggerated, and we have every reason to feel grateful for a bounteous harvest. In some regions of the West the heavy rains seem to have damaged the wheat, but upon the whole, in the Western, Northwestern and Middle States, the crop will probably exceed that of last year Winter wheat shows a very large gain, while the increased acreage of spring is relied upon to overcome all damages from bad weather, insects, &c It cannot be positively known, of course, what the corn crop will amount to, though the general sentiment appears to be that it will be short The latest advices from the principal regions devoted to this cereal are a little less tinged with gloom, but none of the authorities look for a full yield, under the most favorable weather influences henceforth A short corn crop will perpetuate high prices for hog products, and less can the volume of the export trade, and is, therefore, a serious drawback Other cereals and root crops promise well Cotton is progressing, as a whole, so favorably that the estimates have been increased to two and three quarters of a million to three millions of bales The planters have introduced fertilizers along the seaboard to a considerable extent, and with better seed and improved implements of husbandry, and the changed relations of labor becoming more established, the belief is entertained that the maximum estimates is not exaggerated

As a whole, then, the crops are coming in well, and afford the best assurance of content and prosperity among the people It was for such Providential bounties as these that the ancients graced their harvests with such impressive festivals and made such liberal thank offerings to the Patron of the fields who filled the horn of plenty.

Summer Tourists in the North Woods—The Adirondack Humbug

Crowds of tourists are visiting the Adirondack region this summer, attracted by the delusive picture, given in Murray's book of travels, of the beautiful scenery, fine hunting and fishing, and other enjoyments to be found there. But they suffer from poor hotels, hard fare, avaricious landlords, and, above all, from clouds of black flies and other insects, which render existence unendurable except under cover of a "smudge" This latter luxury is consequently in frequent requisition. Says one, "Here, landlord, I think I will sit on the piazza while you will build me a comfortable smudge." "Have you smudged my room thoroughly? I want to go to bed" "See here, we will skin our deer down at the landing, if you will send the boy down with a smudge." The response to these requisitions is a battered tin pail or pan, worn out in house hold service, filled with a mixture of chips, leaves and grass, so fired as to smoulder smoking without flame. The dense, choking columns, which rise from this altar drive away the insects, and fastidious ladies, who at home forbid the choicest cigar, luxuriate in sitting in them; invalids with dainty lungs sleep in rooms packed with smoke, epicures relish their pancakes eaten in clouds of it; and eloquent people declaim from amid the fumes on the purity and sweetness of the wilderness air. The fact is, tourists are voting the adriondacks a humbug A gentleman who formerly resided at Keeseville, hands us the following article, clipped from the Troy Times, and which more fully illustrates the humbug

The improvement of railroad facilities in the Northeastern corner of the Empire State has led Fashion to the adoption of a new freak, and we hear of a vast incursion upon the solitudes of the eastern portion of the great North Woods No thward of Albany and Troy, they go into the woods in coutil as squads in search of the Saranac Lakes. Ladies go, too! There are two thousand visitors there already, and the cry is, still they come The hotels at Keeseville are full, and the woods white with the tents of camping out parties, some of whom, on their return, give most amusing and doleful descriptions of their first experience at the North Woods One lady at Cutting's Ausable House at Keeseville, said there was one man up there who was so far devoured by the black flies that there was not enough left of him to make a decent funeral, and that she was obliged to shut herself up closely in a tent, take a wet towel and kill insects all day, in order to get any rest at night, and finally to employ a guide to do the same thing all night while she slept. As for the fishing, there were thirty rods to every trout, and at night, seventeen torches to every spear The hunting was equally poor Her husband, who is very fond of hunting, after being out all day, returned at night with a big bull frog, completely riddled, from the efforts of fourteen rounds of ammunition Amusing stories are also told of fashionable shoddy parties One gentleman, with his wife and daughter, went up, taking with them seven large Saratoga trunks, and on their arrival called for three parlor bedrooms, but the house being already full they were put up in the attic The next day the young lady was perfectly horrified because she had to put her foot on the bare floor, and drink out of a common glass tumbler" She had never done such a thing in all her life, and would not stay another day for a thousand dollars, and so her papa had to take her home immediately Traveling expenses by train, for two days amounted to fifty dollars, and their money all gone, the unhappy father was obliged to get the landlady to cash his check for $10 Landlord allowed he was good to be cut at them even at that price The boarding house keepers put up extra beds and charge "the trees" They charge awful prices for everything extra except mosquito netting Fish are even more expensive there than at Niagara, many of the guides are getting five dollars per day, and everything else in proportion The merchants say they are frequently called upon by returning parties for money to carry them home, their wallets having been completely depleted

Murray, the Boston clergyman, who wrote so vividly about fishing and hunting in the Saranac, is held responsible for this North Woods fever One party, on their return, registered their names as "Murray's fools" But curiosity is up and crowds will continue to go until the crowds have seen for themselves the world renowned "Saranac"

The Oil Product of Ontario of Canada.

The New York Bulletin is authority for the statement that the oil business of Canada is, at present, one of the leading interests of that country, second only to agriculture. At Petrolia, the only oil producing territory in Canada, there are 50 wells at this date in operation, furnishing crude oil for refining purposes. These wells yield an average of 4 000 barrels a week, the supply varying per day at different wells from eight to seventy five barrels Some of them have been in regular operation for three years, and still the flow continues Eight new wells are going down, and others are likely to follow in consequence of the great revival in the business But a short time since the price of crude oil was merely nominal, it now commands $1 25 per barrel delivered at the railway station, Petrolia This, and the certainty of a steady demand, has greatly encouraged the producers. In addition to the regular weekly supply there are 300 000 barrels stored in under ground tanks in the oil territory, held over at present expectation of a higher price than the current quotation It is generally known, and yet it is worth repeating, that there is a considerable difference between the Canadian and Pennsylvania oil, the former having a specific gravity of 48 deg and the latter of 30 deg The greater market value of the Pennsylvania oil is owing to the fact that it is more easily refined, and that the foreign demand is chiefly for the lighter qualities.

It is only lately that refining has been done to any extent in the Provinces, but it is now claimed that the refined oil of Ontario is better in quality than that produced and refined in Pennsylvania, its superiority consisting in its greater light giving power, and in the fact that it is non explosive In view of the opening up of the foreign trade, new refineries have been built, and the distilling capacity of others enlarged An immense still has been erected at Petrolia, capable of being charged with 2 000 barrels of crude oil, which can be run off once a week

Coal

We learn from the Scranton Republican of the 3d, that the dead lock in that region between the Coal Companies and the miners still continues, without any prospect of a solution It is thought that a majority of the men are in favor of continuing at work, but the pressure brought to bear upon them by the minority, and by outsiders, is seriously felt. The Republican says the indications for a speedy resumption and steady continuance of full work, are not as favorable as they were a few days ago The companies recently conceded to the miners a percentage on work done during June and July, which amounts to about $60 per man, upon condition that they should resume work But thus far the miners stoutly hold out, refusing to accept it.

The Miners' Journal, however, estimates that the supply of coal this year will be by the beginning of December fully six hundred thousand tons over the supply of last year. The deficiency is now only 83 788 tons behind the supply of last year. It is evident from these figures that if purchasers will postpone laying in their supplies for a month or so there must be a fall in prices and they will be able to thwart the speculators who have undertaken to maintain the extortionate rates We notice that in some quarters it is proposed, by way of retaliating on the coal monopolists, to open the country to foreign coal, and it is not at all improbable that Congress may be called to consider whether the coal duty may not safely be entirely abolished. It is certain that persistence in the course of extortion hitherto pursued, will lead to retaliation of some sort on the part of the public

OUR Monthly Report for July will be published to morrow

Important Revenue Decision—Claim for Deduction on Account of Leakage in an Action on an Oil Bond Refused

In the United States District Court, last week, Judge McCandless delivered the following opinion in the case of the United States vs. Brewer et al. This case was argued some days ago by District Attorney Carnahan for the Government and S. Schoyer, Jr, Esq, for the defense, and the questions involved are of importance to the oil trade.

OPINION OF JUDGE M'CANDLESS.

This is a case stated upon an oil transportation bond. On the 30th of June, 1866, the defendants shipped by railroad from the Twentieth District of Pennsylvania to the Fifth District of New Jersey, 1,080 barrels, containing 45,324 gallons of refined oil in good packages, and under legal permits and certificates from the proper authorities. Under like authority the oil was removed from the Fifth District of New Jersey to the bonded warehouse of Reynolds Pratt & Co., in the Second District of New York, without inspection and gauging in the New Jersey District, with the same effect as if the Second District of New York had been the destination set forth in the permit and bond under which such transportation was made.

The oil was properly gaged and inspected in the bonded warehouse of Reynolds, Pratt & Co, on the 30th of July, 1866 By this inspection there was found to be a loss of 6 264 gallons For the tax of twenty cents per gallon upon this quantity so lost, this action is instituted the tax upon the residue of the 45 324 gallons having been properly settled and accounted for. The effect of continued extremely hot weather upon oil barrels, exposed for the length of time ordinarily required in transit from the Twentieth District of Pennsylvania to the Second District of New York, is to decompose their lining and open their seams From the last of June to the close of July, 1866, the weather continued excessively hot The loss of so much of the 6 264 gallons as exceeds the quantity allowed for leakage, by the regulations of the Department at Washington, arose from the effect of solar heat upon the barrels containing it

The amount of actual leakage on oil removed in bond at the time of this loss, allowed by the regulations in pursuance of the sixty first section of the act of the 5 h of June, 1864 was not to exceed three and one-half per cent on any distance exceeding five hundred miles The distance from the Twentieth District of Pennsylvania to the Second District of New York is in excess of five hundred miles

It is not disputed that an allowance of one thousand five hundred and eighty six gallons, or three and one half per cent. on 45 324 gallons should be made for leakage, but it is claimed that there should be a deduction for the remaining four thousand six hundred and seventy-eight gallons, because the loss was occasioned by the effect of solar heat upon the article transported

This is the question for our decision, and I have given it all due consideration, which the multiplicity of my judicial engagements, and the demands upon my time would permit.

Congress wisely encourages the exportation of oil, for it has become an important element in regulating the balance of trade between the United States and foreign nations Oil exported was exempt from taxation. If for sale or consumption in the United States it was subject to a tax of twenty cents per gallon, to be assessed and collected and paid by the producer or manufacturer thereof, as is provided by the ninety fourth section of the act of July 13, 1866 By the sixty first section (act third March 1865) the oil may be removed, without the payment of the duty, under such rules and regulations, and upon the execution of such transportation bonds, or other security, as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe Upon such removal, it must be transferred to a bonded warehouse, where it is again inspected and gauged, and the duty shall be assessed and paid on any deficiency or reduction of the number of gallons Upon such allowance for leakage as may be established by the regulations of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue received at the warehouses from the number of gallons as stated in the bond at the place place of shipment Here, then, is a plain rule of computation, and the percentum of deduction being fixed by a regulation of the Department, in conformity to an act of Congress, becomes a part of the law and of as binding force as if incorporated in the body of the act itself

It is contended by defendant's counsel, in an argument of much ability, that the tax is upon the consumption It is not upon the consumption, but upon the manufactured article The government is not to ascertain whether it has been consumed but whether it has been exported If so, it is free If not, it is subject to the tax of twenty per cent per gallon Fixing a maximum per centage for leakage was designed to prevent the possibility of frauds, by the withdrawal or abstraction of any portion of the oil during its period of transit Such being the rule prescribed by competent authority, courts have no right to depart from it, even in case of absolute loss by the action of the elements The Government is not an insurer The owner incurs, and must take the responsibility The simple inquiry is, has he complied with the condition of his bond? Has he produced to the Collector of the Twentieth District of Pennsylvania a certificate showing that such merchandise has been duly placed in the warehouse designated, from which it cannot be removed except for exportation, or, upon payment of the tax, or has he paid the duties required by law?

It is wholly unnecessary to enter into a discussion as to the effect of solar heat upon refined oil, or as to its penetrating and permeating qualities of the liquid itself It was precisely because of the operation of this agency that a rule was necessary to fix the allowance In some cases there would be no leakage at all, in some less than three and a half per cent, in a majority of cases about three and a half per cent, and in some cases much more On what principle is a rule of law governing this subject, to be relaxed and set aside, because there was extraordinary warm weather in June or July of a particular year? As was ably argued by the counsel for the Government that the leakage in this case happened in the ordinary way, was produced by the ordinary causes, with the difference, that one cause, solar heat, was operating with more than ordinary power The result was leakage, and the law, and the regulations of the Department, do not authorize a distribution of leakage into ordinary and extraordinary in respects in abatement of taxes The law calls the loss thus produced leakage, and has provided a law regulating the allowance, from which, however great the hardship, it is not our province to depart Any other construction would not only open a wide door to fraud, but would practically nullify the regulation itself.

It follows that the defendants have no lawful claim to or deduction for the 4 678 gallons, by reason of its loss caused by solar heat, and judgment must be rendered for the United States for the sum of $935 60, with costs of suit. Judgment accordingly

Decision in Bankruptcy.

A decision which will be of interest to all parties who have anything to do with the Bankruptcy Act, involving, as it does, the right of the Bankruptcy Court to stay proceedings in a State Court, was made in the United States Circuit Court of New York, Judge Nelson presiding, last week The bankrupt in this case was the Kerosene Oil Company of New York, which was adjudged bankrupt a year ago The Guaranty and Indemnity Company of New York held a mortgage upon the real estate of the bankrupt for $100,000, and in October, 1868, they commenced a suit in the Supreme Court of New York to foreclose it. The assignee in bankruptcy desired to contest the validity of this mortgage The assignee, therefore, applied to the Bankruptcy Court, on a petition setting forth the facts, for an order directing the Guaranty and Indemnity Company to stop proceeding in their suit in the State Court They, on the other hand, claimed that the Bankruptcy Court had no jurisdiction to stay proceedings in a State Court, appealing to the provisions in the Judiciary Act, which expressly forbids the issuing of an injunction for that purpose The District Court considered that jurisdiction was given to it by the Bankruptcy Act, and made the order for a stay of proceedings. The Guaranty and Indemnity Company then applied to the Circuit Court to review and reverse this order, and it is the decision of Judge Nelson on that application to which reference is made The decision of the District Court is sustained on the question of jurisdiction, but is modified on a question of practice The question is one of importance and interest It is one which occasioned a serious contest under the former Bankruptcy Act, and which must in some way be carried to the Supreme Court for decision under the present Bankruptcy Act, as it was under the former one.

Good Pure Water

FOR EVERYBODY.

ROSE'S PAT. WATER WELL

IS NOW ACKNOWLEDGED TO BE

SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS,

as thousands can testify

Every Family should have one of these Wells.

STATE AND COUNTY RIGHTS FOR SALE

Great inducements to purchasers

These wells will yield a barrel of water in three minutes The advantages claimed over ordinary wells are

First, They descend below the surface water and tap the pure fountains

Second Then effectually exclude all filth and surface water and contains no vacuum for the pure air, and therefore is pure

Third They are made with dispatch, in summer or winter without any accumulation of rubbish or litter

Fourth Neither rats mice, bugs or worms can get in to these wells

Fifth They are less expensive than ordinary wells by one half

Sixth By an ingenious arrangement a fine strainer is applied to the inside of the pump effectually excluding all sand or grit from rising with the water

It should be remembered that the filthy accumulations of our streets at 15 yards are sending their death-dealing impurities not only in the atmosphere which we breathe, but that every drop of water that finds its way into the common open mouthed well carries with it a portion of these impurities There is no one thing that will induce good health as pure spring water and which you can find a locality where there is but well water you will find sickness If one wishing one of these wells put down call on
